IT LAW | DATA PROTECTION | IP AND COMPETITION LAW |

Jens Nebel has been one of the frequently recommended lawyers for data protection and IT law in Germany for years. Legal 500 recommends him for IT and digitalization and writes in the current issue: "Outstanding professional quality, astute, meticulous, clear, advises holistically and tactically, thinks quickly and comprehensively about a problem from the client's perspective." In 2022 and 2021, WirtschaftsWoche named Jens Nebel one of Germany's best data protection lawyers. The recognised medium also named him as one of the leading lawyers in IT law in 2018 and 2020. Handelsblatt and BestLawyers have also consistently listed Jens Nebel as one of the best IT lawyers in Germany since 2019. The nationally published Kanzleimonitor has been recommending Jens Nebel as a "leading lawyer in IT law" ever since 2020. In addition to several academic publications, Jens Nebel regularly comments on data protection and IT law issues in media published throughout Germany, such as the FAZ, Süddeutsche Zeitung or SPIEGEL. He also acted as the defendant in one of the most important data protection proceedings before the European Court of Justice. In the project business, he supervises and negotiates complex software development projects (often according to agile project methodology) as well as outsourcings, both on the provider and on the demand side. For providers, he is a sought-after consultant for the conception of platform and cloud solutions. In the fashionable field of data protection law, Jens Nebel benefits from his many years of experience and design practice in this area. Jens Nebel also advises and represents clients in the area of soft IP (copyright, trademark and design law) and competition law.

Curriculum Vitae

Following his legal education in Bochum, Washington DC and Wellington (New Zealand), Jens joined KÜMMERLEIN in 2005. His focus has always been IT law and data protection.
